Example

Chuseok holidays, in my opinion, are more enjoyable. Spending time with family is one of the finest parts of Thanksgiving among most people. Many people live too far away from close family members and travel considerable distances to see them by car, train, or airplane. It is also about bridging the gap when you are unable to be with them on other special occasions. Thanksgiving is traditionally one of the busiest travel days of the year. The big picture here is many people celebrate the holiday since it is not about extravagant gifts or festivities, but more about savoring a great dinner with family members and friends.

Effects of Visual Impairment	Effects of Hearing Impairment
1. Risk of Falls, Fractures, and Injuries 2. Bullying 3. Social Isolation 4. Moving Difficulties	1. Fewer Educational and Job Opportunities 2. Bullying 3. Decreases One's Self-esteem and Confidence 4. Communication Barriers

Example

The four senses, for my own part, are very important in people's daily lives and hustle and bustle. It's quite difficult to live when one of our senses is taken away. If I were to choose, I would rather lose my sense of hearing than my vision. The only issue I see is communication limitations, but I believe there are numerous ways to communicate, including writing on paper and using a messenger service. I feel that if I lose my vision, I will also lose everything. But, with the support and unconditional love of my family and friends, I know that I can regain any senses I've lost. I'm confident that I'll be successful.

Example

The way I see it, the rainstorm is heavy and out of control. It seems to be impossible to survive with a very small canoe. But then, in my humble opinion, nothing is impossible if there are other people paddling big canoes too. To my way of thinking, they will help the father and son survive by teaching how to. The other people will give them life jackets and advise them to stay low. Until the rainstorm stops, the father and son go home with a big bag full of fish in their buckets. The son's mother has a smile on her face.

Question/s: What do you think will happen to the man?

1. He walked down the street.
2. Suddenly, he received a message and looked at his phone.
3. He does not notice an open manhole in front of him.

Example

As a gift for Christmas when I was eight years old, my parents handed over a book called "Little Women". I was not over the moon yet when I got it still I began reading it the same day and completed it the following day. I was completely shaken up by the story. I am completely a book worm. Every time I thought about it, I recall crying in the middle of the night and for the next few days. As a young girl, I solely read fairy tales and other uncomplicated literature books. Little Women was the first book that made the characters stand out for me, and I still adore it to this day. I can still recommend it to anyone who asks for my opinion on it. One of the best books of all time.
